

Pediatric Emergency Medicine Skills Course for Emergency Physicians

Thursday, April 25, 2024
Nemours Children's Hospital, Delaware

This is an intensive one day course designed for Emergency Medicine physicians who would like more experience in managing pediatric emergency scenarios. We will provide hands on training in critical pediatric emergency skills. This will include pediatric specific airway management and resuscitation procedures. Additionally, attendees will participate in sessions that focus on pediatric trauma, pediatric sedation, and neonatal and pediatric respiratory emergencies. Using high fidelity simulation, this course will also focus on the crisis resource management skills needed to successfully manage a critically ill pediatric patient.

Learning Objectives

- Discuss priorities of care for the pediatric patient
- List unique features of the pediatric airway
- Use appropriate airway adjuncts to secure a pediatric airway
- Review medications used in pediatric sedation
- Describe the management of neonatal emergencies
- Describe techniques to obtain vascular access in neonatal and pediatric patients
- Identify indicators of illness and injury in the pediatric patient
- Use appropriate medications in pediatric resuscitation
- Discuss the newest recommendations for advanced life support in pediatric patients
- Manage complex children in the Emergency Department
- Develop an approach to common and unusual pediatric illnesses encountered in the Emergency Department
